Pat Strand, owner of Total Home Remodeling, is a respected and award-winning home remodeling expert, who prefers to be known for the service his company provides.

“Our job is to serve our clients fully,” he indicated. “It is not about getting recognition and awards for what we accomplish. It is always about how we make our clients remodeling projects great. That is our emphasis.” And in order to deliver on that commitment, Strand and his team focus on one primary goal with each and every project: do the job well. This requires three simple tools that exist outside of the traditional tool box: talking, guiding and understanding.

“We walk an exploratory path with our clients, exhausting all possibilities before beginning the project,” expressed Strand, who will work tirelessly to ensure his clients receive precisely what they want in their home remodeling project. “We spend more time on the front end, planning and preparing, before we begin actual construction. We want to ensure our clients are fully satisfied with the end result. When they understand what the process will be, the outcome is better.”

It’s no secret, then, that the folks at Total Home Remodeling are bona fide experts in their craft. Just one look at their portfolio says it all and gives strong testament to their unwavering motto: Innovate. Ignite. Indulge. If it’s perfection, creativity and excitement you desire in any home remodeling project that has been on your mind, then the Total Home Remodeling gurus are ready to deliver all that, and more.
