

Whether you're a first-time homeowner looking to update your home or a remodeler getting ready for your next project, Peak Auctioneering can provide you with prime building materials for your next project at tremendous savings over retail.

Located in Kansas City's historic West Bottoms, attending an auction at Peak's will put your design instincts in high gear laminates, there is a style perfect for that room that's waiting for a facelift. Thinking bigger, like a full kitchen or bath makeover? You'll be delighted with the large selection of tile, cabinets, vanities, shower units and so much more. The welcome door is always open at Peak as they have a great selection of interior and exterior doors.

Having a long and successful career in and you may just have to rent a larger truck to pick up all of the fabulous finds you end up purchasing.

Looking for flooring? From domestic hardwood and Brazilian exotics to the hardware and building supply industry, Richard Peak was approached 32 years ago by a savvy industry buyer who mentioned that there needed to be some sort of venue to market the product that didn't sell. Wheels spinning, Richard put that thought into motion and Peak Auctioneering was born.

Peak Auctioneering offers local and national manufacturers, importers and suppliers the opportunity to convert their overstock, discontinued and surplus materials into capital by realizing a fair market value through auction marketing. These brand new products are offered to the public at tremendous savings off retail, making it a win-win opportunity. Companies such as Andersen Windows, Ferguson Enterprises, Pella Windows & Doors, Beasley Flooring, Green Bay Decking and Builders First Choice are just a few of the many who believe in Peak Auctioneering to handle their product, giving Peak's customers the trust that they are buying solid, quality merchandise.

and one secretary has grown to a full traveling setup crew, three auctioneers and full office staff," Vanessa Lollar of Peak Auctioneering said. "We are all in the company in the country and is proud to call Kansas City its home. All auctions are typically held at county or state fairgrounds in the various states they serve. The

"If you're planning a renovation, or if you're a house flipper you certainly want to take a look at these auctions," shared owner Richard Peak.

And it is not just Richard who makes this business run. "What started with Richard auction business. At least 20 times a year, everyone gets on an airplane; clerks, cashiers, auctioneers, forklift operators and security personnel, all to make it happen."

Peak Auctioneering is the largest and oldest special building materials auction

Kansas City auctions are held every eight weeks. Looking to get started this summer? Set aside Thursday, July 11th for the next auction in Kansas City. ■

PRO TIP...

Before you come, do your homework and know what you want, and what the retail prices are, that way you don't overbid or underbid. Check out peakauction.com for more information, as well as what to expect before you start making bids!

PEAK
AUCTIONEERING
Building Material Specialists™

1614 W. 9th St.
Kansas City, MO 64101
816.474.1982
peakauction.com