

While Kansas City wasn't necessarily first on board to embrace the modern contemporary house design, this bold style is quickly gaining popularity. After receiving top honors at the recent Spring Parade of Homes event, Suma winning Santa Clara III home at Chapel Hill in southern Overland Park has turned quite a few heads and has become the talk of the town. As a result, Sumada is busier than ever, and loving every minute of it.

"We are currently working on two cool contemporary homes, one which we designed in downtown Kansas City overlooking the skyline and one we are building in conjunction with our customer at Lake Winnebago," indicated Sumada.

Suma Design and Construction is also adding its personal touch of residential elegance and style in multiple subdivisions around the metro area including Thousand Oaks, Forest Ridge Estates, Overland Ridge Estates and Chapel Hill, along with a few custom homes in Platte City, Smithville and at Lake Winnebago.

With 45 years of experience in the construction industry, Sumada, who works alongside his son Ben, is the consummate expert and master of his craft. His creative wheels constantly in motion, he enjoys the motivation new sparks of creativity afford him and embraces unbridled enthusiasm when it comes to his trade. His design portfolio is not only an open book, but potentially one without end, as he continually strives to remain a leading force in the inspired designs he brings to life.

Smart home technologies are quickly coming into play as computer-savvy homeowners desire to control many features of their home via their Smart phones. It's convenient, easier for today's fast-paced lifestyles and allows homeowners to interact with their house using their phones.

"We offer it in our houses, and, depending on the price point, it is often a standard feature," noted Sumada.
